I am not an attorney so I cannot give you any legal advise. I can only give you my thoughts. If your right were terminated, you have no biological connections to the children any longer, so how can they make you pay support on children that are no longer yours? I don't believe legally they can. If you owed child support before termination I do believe you are responsible for only that amount.

Who turned on you Nicole or Lacy? Did Nicole have a direct hand in you loosing your children? Did Nicole make any reports that have fraudulent information in them?

Of course there ar conflicts of interest. One hand washes the other. I made claims with the state because of these conflicts. The investigator told me there are conflicts. The investigaators don't have much say as far as I'm conserned because they send their reports to the higher up and those people make the decisions, all political.

I believe I heard about the mother you referred to that tried the killing and is getting the kids back.
